Zero Employee Injuries

A ski resort is a really dangerous place to work and people get hurt all the time right? Well half of this might be close to the truth. The mountains are dangerous and skiing and riding are activities that carry a lot of risk. Did you know though that at Stevens Pass our last employee injury that required medical treatment was on January 16, 2021? As of Oct 1, that is 257 days injury free, which includes over half the winter season.

We are incredibly proud of our improving safety record and are targeting Zero Medical Injuries this winter. It's not about maintaining a streak, but about everyone knowing that your personal physical and mental wellbeing is the number one priority, and carrying this focus on Safety of Self into all the decisions we make each moment; so everyone can go home safe every day.

TRAINING CORNER

For some of you this summer may have meant an active life of hiking, biking, climbing, and swimming. For others it may have looked more sedentary. Most likely a mix of the two, but we could all use a bit of help getting back into skiing and snowboarding shape physically, mentally, and emotionally. Our winter activities do not always match up with summer activities and for this reason it is a good idea to start at least thinking about dusting off gear, stretching and moving those winter muscles, and preparing for when the white fluffy stuff starts falling from the sky.

In the Training Corner, you will see tips and tricks each week to help you prepare for and navigate the season. For this first edition, I want to start out slow. Sometime this week, today even, take a 10-minute walk and think about what you want out of this winter season. Allow your brain to picture what the season looks like to you and process what experiences you hope for this winter? Give yourself time to think about what you want, and what is important prior to making any plans.

Employee Referral Program
